Love and Intimacy

Marriage is an alliance entered into by a man who can’t sleep with the window shut, and a woman who can’t sleep with the window open.

~ George Bernard Shaw

Sometimes I wonder if men and women really suit each other. Perhaps they should live next door and just visit now and then.

~ Katharine Hepburn

The many faces of intimacy: the Victorians could experience it through correspondence, but not through cohabitation; contemporary men and women can experience it through fornication, but not through friendship.

~ Thomas Szasz in The Second Sin, 1973

INTIMACY, n. A relation into which fools are providentially drawn for their mutual destruction.

~ Ambrose Bierce in The Devil’s Dictionary, 1911

The intimacy in sex is never only physical. In a sexual relationship we may discover who we are in ways otherwise unavailable to us, and at the same time we allow our partner to see and know that individual. As we unveil our bodies, we also disclose our persons.

~ Dr. Thomas Moore in Psychology Today, 1994

No one can keep up with me not even Dr. Givings—that is how he fell in love with me, he said he was determined to keep up with me—he only saw the back of my head before we married because I was always one step ahead. He said he had to marry me to see my face.

~ Mrs. Givings, in In the Next Room

Historical Hysteria

Sarah Ruhl’s comedy is based on historical fact: in the 1880s, the vibrator was seen as no naughtier than a stethoscope. Doctors and patients perceived no connection between sex and the “paroxysm” that the vibrator generated in women. The paroxysm was viewed as a release and restoration of the balance of fluids in the uterus, which had caused the symptoms of hysteria.

We owe a lot to Thomas Edison—if it wasn’t for him, we’d be watching television by candlelight.

~ Milton Berle

Is it a fact—or have I dreamt it—that, by means of electricity, the world of matter has become a great nerve, vibrating thousands of miles in a breathless point in time?

~ Nathaniel Hawthorne in The House of the Seven Gables, 1851

Let There be Light

Thomas Edison patented the first system for distributing electricity in 1880, in part to support his commercial improvements to the electric light bulb. In 1882, Edison switched on the first electric utility and began distributing electricity to 59 customers in lower Manhattan. A ready source of electric current in the home presented endless possibilities for how it could be harnessed.
